A JUST PROTEST.

The Mormon people of this county, at their quarterly conference in this city, on Sunday, adopted a series of resolutions which will be found elsewhere in this issue of THE HERALD. The Mormon people elsewhere will heartily endorse these resolutions, and so will honest, fair-minded, impartial people without regard to sect or creed. These resolutions are a protest against the unwarranted proceedings which have been taken in the District Courts recently in requiring an oath from jurors not contemplated by law, and in rejecting applicants for citizenship because of their religious belief. The Constitution forbids a religious test, and the laws prohibit such test, yet the test is applied to Mormons who are called to serve as jurors or who ask citizenship. The Mormons have a right to protest against the outrage and to demand a discontinuance of the irregular proceedings. The Constitution contemplates and the laws provide that men shall be dealt with for their acts, their opinions and their consciences being their own and free from supervision and regulation by statute. A man may believe as he pleases, and his belief cannot be lawfully inquired into. What the Mormons ask is what the law guarantees to them, and what they have the right to demand, namely: that they be not punished for their belief. If they violate the statutes, if their acts are contrary to the constitutional law, they expect to suffer the penalties prescribed, and if they complain under such circumstances, they do not expect their complaints will excite either sympathy or consideration.

We do not believe the authorities at Washington approve the late proceedings in the district courts, nor that they will permit such things to continue, when the facts are laid before them. The administration has on more than one occasion lately announced that it desired the laws applied in Utah as they are elsewhere; that it wanted the guilty punished and the innocent protected, which is all that the people of Utah ask. We hope an account of the courts' proceedings, together with the resolutions adopted in the Tabernacle on Sunday, will be laid before the powers that be, in which event relief may be expected.

Those politicians who are trying to induce themselves to believe that President Cleveland will decline a re-nomination, should read history and learn that no President yet has refused two terms. Only one, George Washington, declined a third term, and it is pretty well understood, though reverence for the Father of his Country makes it a matter not to be talked about, that Washington would not have refused a third term if his election had been certain and no "mud" had made its appearance. Cleveland is not the man to break a line of presidential precedents as old as the republic.

THE NEGLIGENT REGISTRARS.

A good many complaints reach us as to the inactivity of the registration officers. Persons assert that the registrars are not visiting the houses, but are attending to their private affairs; it is said that comparatively few of the voters in this city have as yet been registered, and at the rate the work is proceeding, not a fourth of the citizens entitled to vote will get their names on the list before the registration closes. What makes this matter somewhat alarming, is the fact that the Commission has limited the time for the registration; that is to say, the Commission will not pay for more than fifteen days' service, one-half of which time has already expired, though only a small percentage of the voters have been registered. The registrars seem to think their convenience, and not that of the public, is to control in this matter. Some have let it be understood that if citizens will call at their offices or residences after or before business hours the registrars will administer the oath and put the names on the list. Evidently, these officials have a misconception of their duties. They are operating under a law, and are not a law unto themselves. The law says it shall be the duty of the registrar to visit every dwelling house to each precinct, and make careful inquiry as to any or all persons entitled to vote. It is not a matter of choice with the registrar, as some seem to believe, whether he will visit dwelling houses or force citizens to hunt him up. During the week commencing the first Monday in June, the registrar, at his office, must enter the name of any voter that may have been omitted, on such voter appearing and complying with the requirements of the law.

As the registrars are Liberals and Loyal Leaguers they may think that neglect of duty and disregard of the plain requirements of the law, on their part, will not be objected to or punished, and they can, by their negligence prevent the registration of People's party voters; and it is possible they are correct in their assumption, but voters should see to it that the scheme, if it be a scheme, does not succeed. It is a time when it is dangerous to merely declare your rights and expect others to yield them. If the registrars will not perform their duty and call at the dwellings of voters, the latter must stand on their dignity and lose their right to vote through the negligence of officials. This is what the registrar want and what would best please them for we understand that the officials are careful to see that no Liberal who cares to register shall fail from the registrar's neglect.

THE HERALD advises voters to hunt up the registrars, inasmuch as the latter do not hunt up the voters, and insist upon having their names placed on the list. Do not take chances, and it will be better not to delay. There will be enough for the registrars to do during the week in June when they are required to be at their offices; hence if voters put off the registration now, many of them will learn when too late, that they have lost their right to vote next August.

THE EDMUNDS-LUCKER law requires that a marriage ceremony in this Territory "shall be certified by a certificate stating the fact and nature of such ceremony, the full names of the parties concerned, and the full name of every officer, priest and person, by whatever style or designation called or known, in any way taking part in the performance of such ceremony, which certificate shall be drawn up and signed by the parties to such ceremony, and by every officer, priest and person taking part in the performance of such ceremony, and shall be by the officer, priest, or other person solemnizing such marriage or ceremony filed in the office of the Probate Court." The penalty for violating this provision is "a fine of not more than $1,000, or by imprisonment not longer than two years, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court." We do not know of any violation of this clause of the law, but some of the certificates which have been filed for record by certain ministers would have to bear a liberal interpretation in order to make them fill the bill, while others are so awkwardly formulated that they are literary curiosities. One is surprised when he reads how clumsily men presumed to be educated employ words. It would be well if uniformity could be observed in these certificates, but this can hardly be expected when one minister thinks the back of an envelope is good enough as paper on which to state the facts, and another minister is content to write a certificate on a dirty and torn sheet which he picks out of the waste basket. It will do no harm, however, to utter a word of caution to certain gentlemen of the cloth. If a legal question concerning one of these marriages should arise, and the certificate be brought into court, a clergyman might be put to a good deal of trouble when he learned that through carelessness he had failed to comply with the law, his certificate failing to set forth all the facts required to be stated.

WILLIAM O'BRIEN the talented editor of United Ireland, the Dublin organ of the Irish Home Rule party, arrived in New York yesterday, and will at once proceed to Canada. Lord Lansdowne is the Governor-General of Canada, and owns real estate in Ireland from which some of his tenants have been evicted by the harsh laws of Great Britain. Mr. O'Brien has crossed the Atlantic for the purpose of "denouncing Lansdowne in every large city of the Dominion." The Irish editor is a very able man, but it will occur to a good many thoughtful people in this country and in Europe, that wisdom did not dictate this journey. Lord Lansdowne does not occupy his position by the suffrages of the Canadian people; he is the viceroy by the appointment of the crown, and it matters little to him whether the Canadian voters like or dislike him. He is there to stay until his monarch and master recalls him, and if every citizen of Canada were to sign a resolution denouncing him, he could not go until released. It certainly matters not at all to the Irish in Ireland that Lansdowne is hated in Canada, as the Dominion has no more to do with the Government of Canada than it has with the regulation of the tides. What the Irish want is to make Lansdowne unpopular in England and Ireland. After Editor O'Brien has made the rounds of the Dominion cities and induced crowds of people to shout themselves hoarse over his denunciations of the Governor-General, without in the least disturbing that official, the brilliant Irishman will probably conclude that he has wasted ammunition which might better have been employed at home.
